RICHARD FLETCHER

The Advertiser very much surprised that any of the political friends of Mr Fletcher, should have been at all apprehensive that he would not be able to release himself from the unpleasant situation in which he has been apparently placed in his controversy with the Committee of Ways and Means, "with honor to himself and to the satisfaction of his constituents. We could only account for this, by attributing to our friends a want of information as to the character of Mr Fletcher, and an undue confidence in the infallibility of that source from which the issue proceeded."

By our last account from Washington, it appears that the Boston Atlas, containing the extraordinary charges implicating the veracity of Mr Fletcher, had been received there, and in reference thereto, the correspondent of the Baltimore Chronicle thus writes:

"I can assure you, that your seats, though seemingly well grounded, will be not disappointed. Richard Fletcher is able to confute any accuser who shall seek to sulily his fair name - What he stated, on the floor of the House is true. He had never seen, revised, nor read the Atlas report of his remarks in Faneuil Hall, in his life, and not report of them."

As the report is published, was made for the Atlas by Mr Weston, Mr Hilditch, a member of the Suffolk Bi., and one of the dissenting editors of the Atlas, took that report to Mr Fletcher's office, for his revision. He was busied with several gentlemen, and could not even look at the report, and no not, and it was they prepared for the press by Mr Hilditch. Mr Fletcher, never, to this day, (as he averred) saw the Atlas, and is still ready to swear, having read or revised it."

Upon the above statement, as true in every important particular, you may fearlessly reply:

Mr Hilditch, the gentleman here alluded to is in Washington, and this fact may account for, but by no means excuse the hasty assertions of the Atlas.

The correspondent of the New York Star also, thus writes:

"Mr Fletcher, to this day, has never seen, read nor revised the report of his remarks in Faneuil Hall, since they were delivered. This was his statement on the floor of the House, and is still his avowal."

Mr Fletcher is incapable of uttering an untruth and we have always had a most perfect reliance that this matter would end in the disappointment of his political enemies (we do not believe he has a personal one) who have so chucklingly predicted his political downfall.

The trial of Frost, the steam doctor, in New York, terminated on Saturday, in his conviction of manslaughter in the fourth degree. The jury recommended him to mercy. His counsel moved an arrest of judgment on the ground of technical informities in the trial.

The verdict of the jury, we are glad to say, has settled the question of the right of quacks to dose their patients to death. Those who are in the habit of killing by steam or poisoning by lobelia, should beware in time. The Sunday Morning News says:

We understand some curious facts have been proved by the defense, in this case, relative to the miraculous power of lobelia. As we have not attended the trial, we cannot vouch for the truth of the following, which is reported to have been given in evidence. Our readers can judge for themselves:

I know an important fact. A man was blown up in a powder mill. Two and twenty fragments were collected in a basket; one teaspoon full of the seeds was shaken into the basket with them, this united the stray particles, the second teaspoon produced perspiration among the particles, and "roused up" healthy action in the basket, the basket, in 15 minutes, vomited out the man in one entire mass, and he stood on his legs; the third teaspoon restored him to consciousness and motion, and a cup of composition tea enabled him to talk. He has been well ever since.

[From the New York Commercial Advertiser.]

UPPER CANADA. - We have the Toronto Patriot of the 12th inst. That paper states that since the abortive attempt of Mackenzie, not less than 40,000 able bodied men have marched into the city, ready to support the government.

The number of insurgents killed in the skirmish of the 2d Regt. was 100. It is to be 300, for prisoners taken and afterward, were about 100. Among them was a son of Lount the commander-in-chief of the insurgents. He said his father had forced him into rebellion.

The whole number of insurgents was never greater than 300, and they were led to believe that they would find at Toronto from 6 to 7000 men in arms, well equipped and provided with every requisite to overturn the government. Mackenzie deceived them in the last, as he is now attempting to deceive the people of our State.

[From the Toronto Patriot, Dec 12th.]

A special commission has been appointed by his Excellency, to inquire into the cause of the rebellion, of which the Vice-Chancellor is President, and which we understand will hold its first sitting this day at the Crown Land Office. From all we hear, we reasonably infer, that some most curious and astounding disclosures will be made. The answers are mostly kept willing to speak.

FLA. FLORIDA.

An extract from a letter dated Fort Brooke, Fla., Aug. 21st, 1837, just time to you that an express arrived from Col Taylor, who I have seen to south of the White Oak, and who now is at Kissimmee, stating that the Seminoles and Indians are all in arms. -

What the war is over. The trains are rapidly going direct from the supply without any escort whatever. And yet there has not been any news of any thing's taking place at Ft. Brooke.

Mr. J. C. Jones, of New Orleans, a lawyer, is here in town, and is very ill, and out of doors, and is not able to get about.

CONGRESSIONAL.

FRIDAY, Dec 22, 1837.

In the House, ... it is to be, after the reading of a journal, J. Q. Adams rose, stating the circumstances which transpired the day previous when he was called on to vote on Mr. Paton's resolution, and his request that the motion and the Speaker's decision upon it might be entered on the journal, but no such entry had been made.

The Speaker said that motions out of order and not acted upon by the House were never entered upon the journal.

Mr Adams then moved that the journal be amended by inserting "When the name of J. Q. Adams was called, he rose in his seat, and said, I hold this resolution to be a violation of the Constitution, of the rights of my constituents and of the people of the United States to petu-" tion, and of my own freedom of speech as a member of this House," and appealed to the courtesy of the House to permit the amendment.

A motion was made to lay the amendment on the table and prevailed. The House refusing to order the yeas and nays. As Mr Adams's motion and the action of the House upon it, will of course be recorded at length in the journal, he succeeds perfectly in the object he had in view, in making the motion, i.e. to have his answer appear in the journal.

On motion of Mr Cambreleng, the rules were suspended for the purpose of receiving reports from Committees. He then reported from the Committee of Wives and Males the following Appropriation Bills:

A bill making appropriations for fortifications for the year 1838. A bill for the support of the navy.

Mr Cambreleng then reported the bill from the Senate for the remission of duties on goods destroyed by fire in the city of New York, without amendment. All these bills were referred to the committee of the whole on the state of the union.

Mr Smith of Maine, brought in a bill for the reorganization of the Treasury Department, and wished to make it the special order for a particular day.

Mr Whittlesey expressed his hope that they should have no more special orders.

Mr Smith then moved that it be committed to usual.

Mr Smith from the committee of commerce reported without amendment, the Bill from the Senate, allowing a drawback on imported hemp.

Mr Smith from the same committee, reported a bill making appropriation for the erection of a Marine Hospital at Portland Harbor, Maine.

Mr McKim, of Md. asked that the committee of the whole be discharged from the consideration of the bill-making appropriation for the Baltimore and Susquehanna Rail Road.

The remainder of the day was spent in private business.

In the Senate, Mr. Clay presented a petition from two citizens of the District of Columbia, declaring that they had lost a considerable sum of money through the post office, and returning the loss to the negligence of persons engaged in the post office here, and praying for indemnification. It was referred to the committee on post offices and post roads.

A number of petitions and memorials were then presented.

CURRENCY IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

The order of the day, the bill to restrain the circulation of small notes in this District was then taken up and debated.

Both Houses adjourned over to Tuesday.

In the House on Thursday, Mr Underwood of Kentucky referred in terms of reprobation to the extravagant expenditures of the administration upon the Florida War. He calculated that for every Seminole warrior, it had cost the country fifteen thousand dollars three times as much as was ever offered for the head of Papuanus.

Mr. J. Jencks, owner of a tree known by the name of the oak of the Gendarmerie, had long desired to cut it down. The superstition of the old woman in his vicinity prevented him, for more than two hundred years the oak, they said, had protected all the country of Montmorillon from robbers and from brigands; it had, moreover, given shelter to bands of partisans, during a great storm, and since that day the tree was ended, it seems, with magical virtue. Nevertheless M. Litzache cut down the tree on the first of September last, and found that, hollowed inside by the hand of nature, it contained a little box with the initials H. D. There was no key, but they broke open the lock in the presence of the Mayor of Luttre. A hundred and twenty gold pieces or medals, bearing the effigy of Francis I and Henry II, and a letter from Diana to Henry of Valois, were found.

THE WAY THE GOVERNMENT TREAT THE INDIANS. - The 500 Choctaws which the U. S. Government received at Fort Gibson, (Arkansas) and who left off their plumes on learning that they had been deceived in the amount of pay they were to get, were the more exasperated in some measure of their having received $100,000 worth of goods of Western merchants in exchange on this expedition, and which are now dead loss. The St Louis Bulletin says there is little hope the merchants will ever get their pay, and that the deception practised on the Indians is a flagrant disrepect.

As the report gains ground that a Court of Inquiry is to sit on Commodore Jones, the Commander of the Exploring Squadron, it is to be hoped the entire history of the disastrous defeat will be spread before the public and produced the deepest regret of the nation.

THE SOUTH. - The South is in a state of great depression over the abolition of slavery.

A Powder-Horn of the Revolution. One of the most curious relics we have ever seen is a large powder-horn, carved on the outside with skill into various devices and landscape raised in bold relief, each of which is cut with surpassing delicacy, showing the workman to have been master of his art. It belonged to an eminent revolutionary patriot of this city, who thus beguiled his time while imprisoned during the British war, in the famous Sugar House in Liberty street, still standing in its original state, and until within a few years, in active employment in its appropriate and more agreeable office of fabricating in steel for the manufacture of the palette, rather than inflicting pain and misery on those who battled for their country's rights. It was natural that a person
